Situated between these areas are the river deltas and Vietnam's capital, Hanoi. The seascape of Halong Bay is one of Vietnam's most magical sights and experiences. Thousands of limestone pinnacles protrude through the azure waters, limestone caves lie deep within the mountains, and hidden beaches wait to be explored. Sail in a converted wooden junk around these islands enjoying the magical scenery, whilst feasting on a seafood lunch. The Dry Halong Bay boasts dramatic scenery and huge limestone formations rising out of the rice paddies. Another important city in this area is Hai Phong in the delta of the Red River. It serves as the primary seaport for the northern region of the country and is an important communication hub.

With a long stretch of idyllic tropical coastline, Central Vietnam boasts one of the country's most picturesque landscapes. Central Vietnam grants a fascinating journey through the country's history, from the ancient remains of the My Son Cham Towers to the magnificent Imperial Citadel of Hue and the charming streets of Hoi An. It is home to historical cities of Hue, Danang, and Hoi An and the world heritage sites.

In Central Vietnam, visitors can explore a wide range of outdoor activities including diving, water sports, biking excursions into the surrounding countryside or taking boat trip excursion to nearby islands. There are also possibilities to attend cooking classes, relax in spas and much more.

South Vietnam has a tropical climate with two distinct seasons. The rainy season lasts from May to November and dry season lasts from December to April the next year. The Mekong Delta has a vast network of canals and rivers and stretches from Cambodia to the East Vietnam Sea. It is blessed with lush and fertile land making it the rice bowl for Vietnam. The winding canals and by waters of the Mekong Delta region are home to busy floating markets, fruit plantations and an enduring rural way of life. Floating markets are unique activities of local people in the Mekong Delta, with two bustling ones in Cai Be and Can Tho, which can be reached from Ho Chi Minh City on one or two day excursions.

The Northern Highlands of Vietnam are a wild and inaccessible region bordered to the north and west by China and Laos.

The countryside is spectacular with deep valleys and high mountains, including Fansipan (3,143 m), Vietnam's highest peak.

Vietnam's most famous hill station is reached either by road or by train from Hanoi. Most travellers take one of the 9-hour overnight sleeper trains that run in both directions.

Please note that there is no airport at Sa Pa or Lao Cai, and that the road journey should only be considered as part of a longer land itinerary.

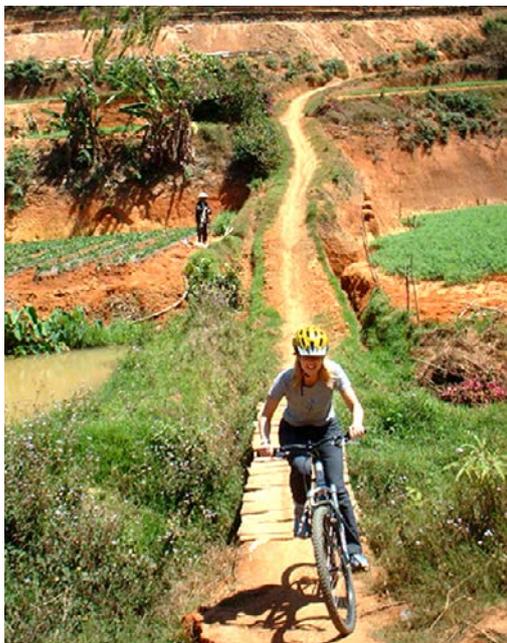

Trekking and walking options from Sa Pa to the small local villages are numerous and range from gentle paved walks to more demanding trails.

They can also involve transport to collect guests at the end of the day to return to the hotel.

There are small village shops along the way and with stunning views all around, walks around this area make for a memorable day.

The house is an adventure heaven overlooking untouched forests and steeped in the culture and history of the S'Tieng and Ma minorities. Owned by the three ethnic minorities in the vicinity, here you sleep in a spotless and comfortable communal longhouse. Plenty of activities are suggested to satisfy all adventurers: kayaking on the Amazonian like lake, biking across lush bamboo forest and rice paddies and meet with a warmly welcoming local population. It is a very authentic module suitable for families.

Ao Show |

The show lasts only a little over an hour, but during that time the performers will amaze you with a variety of feats ranging from travelling across the stage in human-sized baskets to making bamboo/human bridges over which baskets and people are delivered across the stage.

Cycling excursion around Chau Doc |

This authentic, off the beaten track adventure will offer you an insight into life in the Mekong delta. Take hidden pathways to see fishermen and farmers at work, discover genuine pagodas and temples and soak the peaceful atmosphere of this quite, hidden stretch of Vietnam. This short view into the lives of the locals and untouched landscapes really offers an experience that has not been encountered by many, making this a truly authentic MEKONG experience.

Opened in May of 2004, the Pandanus Resort is unique in many ways. It is the only resort in Vietnam that offers a complete all-inclusive program, the only resort with a complimentary daily wine and cheese reception, the only resort with two in-house music bands and the only resort that provides all guests with introductory walking tours of the town of Mui Ne. Unlike many of the smaller resorts that line the beaches of Phan Thiet, the Pandanus is large enough to give guests that unmistakable feeling of freedom and independence.

The resort is comprised of 134 rooms, suites and bungalows scattered throughout ten hectares of manicured tropical gardens, each room is designed with comfort and luxury in mind, incorporating the ambiance of a tropical paradise.

The buildings and landscape are designed to complement, not compete with the natural surroundings. Adjacent to the beach is a huge free-form pool surrounding an island covered with palm trees. Throughout the gardens are small streams, lakes with lotus blossoms, dozens of colorful tropical plants and flowers, and displays of Cham cultural icons. In the very center are three descending water lily ponds. The public areas have been constructed in the Cham architectural style, with stately high wooden ceilings, while the bungalows and guest buildings match the colors of the orange sand dunes above the resort.
